CONTINUE RUHR POLICY--CUNO

WILL NOT DROP OPPOSITION TO FRENCH TROOPS

Chancellor Tells Reichstag Negotiations With France are Impossible Under Present Conditions

PREMIER SUBJECTED TO SEVERE HECKLING BY COMMUNIST GROUP

British Proposals Impossible of Fulfillment Asserts Cuno

BERLIN.—By The Associated Press.—The French procedure in the Ruhr and the Rhineland makes negotiations with France wholly impossible, Chancellor Cuno told the Reichstag today in his promised review of the internal and foreign situation referring to the present stage of the Anglo-French negotiations on the reparations question.

"In my endeavor to continue cordial relations with her former comrade in arms, England, undoubtedly made liberal concessions to France and while it is not up to us to pass judgment on them, we at the same time have ourselves free of the folly of expecting sympathy in quarters where we know they are not present."

Won't Drop Resistance

Declaring that the German government could not agree to the French demand that it suggest abandonment of passive resistance to the people of the Ruhr, the chancellor said:

"What we cannot and will not do is to abandon a German land and betray fellow countrymen. We refuse to work under the bayonets of our oppressor."

Chancellor Cuno's address has been received as the most depressing statement yet made to the legislature by the present government.

The coalition parties regard it as a disappointing utterance.

Heckled by Radicals

The chancellor was visibly disconcerted by the hysterical heckling of the communist members who, when he arose, to speak, hailed him as "traitor," "swindler" and "president of the Sinner's empire."

He was continually interrupted by the address was given, but when it was finished the speaker received applause.

Asserting that the British draft reply to the last German reparations note contained much that was impossible of fulfillment, Herr Cuno said it appeared England had gone extraordinarily far in her concessions to the French viewpoint.

Continue Present Policy

"It is necessary to continue with all our strength passive resistance from mad acts of violence and terror," he said, "and to support actively from the unoccupied territory the population which is persevering in a passive resistance of its own will."

He reiterated that Germany would not abandon a German land and betray fellow countrymen. Repeating the French statement that the Ruhr was to be freed "only when the last penny was paid," and pointing out that the "most vital instrument" with which Germany might pay had been taken away when the Ruhr was seized, Herr Cuno asserted that if Germany's collapse was to be accomplished "in the name of justice," she must be under no illusion.

Only Relief from Within

"Submission to the merciless obstructions of French government," he added, "would have to be sealed with a document which would be worse than the treaty of Versailles, which weighs like a curse upon the peoples of Europe."

Herr Cuno said he was only certain that there was no reason for great hopes and that Germany must believe and help herself.

INDIAN MOUND AT MARION MAY BE CHOSEN AS SITE FOR HARDING MEMORIAL

MARION, O.—By The Associated Press.—Eventually the body of Warren G. Harding may find a final resting place on the top of an old Indian mound just east of this city and overlooking the home where he lived for so many years and where he made his famous front porch campaign for the presidency.

Close personal friends of the late president have started a movement to that end, and which may include the erection of a suitable mausoleum with funds to be derived from the sale of gold dollars—the same plan followed in obtaining funds for the memorial to President William McKinley, at Niles, O.

As soon as possible the plans will be submitted to Mrs. Harding for her approval or rejection.

The Indian mound lies just east of the cemetery where the president's body will be entombed Friday and is a beautiful grassy hill some 75 feet higher than the surrounding country. It is studded with many forest trees and is one of the most beautiful spots near Marion.

Cemetery authorities let it become known Thursday that for more than a year, E. K. Uhler, a very intimate friend of Mrs. Harding, had reserved an acre of ground in one of the most beautiful spots in the Marion cemetery as a possible place for Mr. Harding. In reserving the space, Mr. Uhler told cemetery officials that "some day we may have to bury a president or former president of the United States here." The site of this acre plot is near where Mr. Harding's mother is buried.

WIDOW'S WREATH ONLY FLOWERS ON HARDING'S BIER

Fresh Blossoms Cover Dead Flowers Placed There by Mrs. Harding in Frisco

WASHINGTON, D. C.—By The Associated Press.—A single wreath of flowers showing scarlet, yellow and white, lay across the casket of President Harding as it rested in solemn dignity in the capitol. It was the offering of an anguished heart to its lost companion.

But, although its bloom and fragrance are gone, still another floral tribute was there, also placed there by the hands of Mrs. Harding. It was the design she arranged before the dead president began his long journey from San Francisco towards home. The crossing of the continent withered the flowers but the president's widow would not remove them, simply laying upon them clusters of fresh blossoms.

SIMPLE RITES ARE PLANNED BY HOME FOLK

Brief Services at Marion in Sharp Contrast to Elaborate Ceremonies at Washington on Wednesday

PUBLIC TO BE GIVEN GLIMPSE OF FACE OF DEAD PRESIDENT

Body to Lie in State at Father's Home Today and Friday Morning

MARION, O.—Traveling slowly through long lines of homefolks, the funeral train carrying President Harding's body arrived in Marion at 12:38 p. m., Thursday, two hours and thirty-eight minutes late.

Scarcely had the wheels of the incoming train ceased to turn before the bells of the churches of Marion began tolling slowly for the city's distinguished citizen—home to rest forever among the friends and neighbors he loved best of all.

Before the coffin was taken from the train, those who had accompanied the body from Washington stepped upon the station platform and entered waiting automobiles.

At 1:12 o'clock the funeral procession from the train reached the home of the dead president's father, Dr. George T. Harding, Sr., and the body was reverently carried into the house for a brief privacy before it was to lie in state.

Pass Familiar Scenes

Mrs. Harding, still calm and composed, was one of the last to leave the train. As the cortege had neared Marion she had sat by the window of her compartment looking out on silent streets.

CAPITOL IS SILENT

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Silence prevailed Thursday throughout the capitol, where Wednesday the state funeral was held. Upon its numerous doors were hung the sign "Closed." Usually the mecca for tourists, the corridors in the massive pile of marble and steel were deserted save for a few watchmen. As an evidence of its reverence, congress will exclude the public from the buildings until after the funeral Friday at Marion. All public offices of the executive departments, likewise will remain closed until Saturday. The capitol grounds were empty save for the bier where rested the body during the funeral ceremony.

crowds, composed of some of whom she had known since girlhood and upon the scenes she had known and with her husband loved above and beyond any of the wonderful scenes they had seen on the recent and ill-fated trip.

The funeral train for nearly two hours before reaching Marion passed through the country intimately associated with the life of the dead president.

There was Mansfield, visited as a boy, enjoying the frequent trips "to the city," for Mansfield then was the largest place in this section of the state. During the campaign of 1920 Mr. Harding often motored to Mansfield in search of recreation on the golf links.

Then there was Caledonia, where Mr. Harding spent his boyhood. When he became president, the proud citizens of Caledonia erected a large sign board beside the Erie railroad tracks and painted thereon "Harding's Boyhood Home." Today the sign was draped in mourning. Citizens were proud even in their grief for the boy who had lived among them had fought a good fight.

Throgs Await Train

Before reaching Caledonia the black draped train passed within two miles of the old Harding homestead at Blooming Grove, purchased by Mr. Harding last spring, not as was said then to provide a home for him on leaving the White House, but to prevent the farm from getting into the hands of those who might commercialize it. He decided it several months ago to have two nephews, George Harding III, and Warren Harding.

Everywhere along the way from Mansfield the passing of the train was marked by an almost continuous

Eight-Hour Day in Steel Industry to Begin Next Week

Reform to be Inaugurated in One Unit of Gary Plant Monday; Others to Follow

End of Twelve-Hour Day is Fulfillment of Harding Wish

Dead President Had Long Desired Change in Working Hours

CHICAGO, Ill.—A new era in the steel industry—the advent of the eight-hour day—begins next week, according to reliable reports Wednesday. It marks the beginning of a program to abolish the twelve-hour day and place the industry on a universal three shift, eight-hour basis.

The three shift working program starts in the United States Steel corporation's mills at Gary, Ind., next Monday. More than 500 new blast furnace workers will be taken on to make the change, it was learned.

This change is to be made in only one unit of the Gary mills Monday, but some of the open hearth workers will be put on the eight-hour basis on August 15, it is reported. Within a year it is promised that every steel worker in the Gary plants will end his workday with eight hours in the mills.

Carnegie Mills to Adopt It

Several mills of the Carnegie Steel company, largest subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, will adopt the new program within a few days, perhaps next week, according to dispatches from New York quoting Albert H. Gary, chairman of the steel corporation's board of directors.

Independent steel companies soon will fall in line with the move to abolish the twelve-hour day, according to dispatches from the east. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, one of the largest independent concerns, will shift to the eight-hour day for its present twelve-hour workers, who will receive ten hours' pay. Other classes of employees now working eleven hours, will have one hour taken off their day but will receive no increase in their hourly pay, it was said.

One of Harding's Wishes

Abolition of the twelve-hour day will mean fulfillment of one of President Harding's last wishes. It was a great desire to see workers who toiled in the face of the steel mill menaces obtain a normal day's employment in the matter of working hours. On the last day of President Harding's life Mr. Gary announced that the twelve-hour day would be abolished and the eight-hour day established as rapidly as possible.

The change to three shifts of eight hours each means employment of 65,000 more workers in the steel mills, according to estimates. These same estimates added $15,000,000 to the steel industry's payroll. In the meantime, hour wages will be increased about 25 per cent, it was stated, and the per diem will be decreased as a result of the change which will take off one-third the steel worker's time in the mills and give it to him for rest and recreation with his family and friends. In other words, workers receiving 40 cents an hour will get 50 cents, while the daily pay will be reduced from $1.80 for twelve hours to $1 for eight hours.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bothers

(Modes of Today)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

At the Core

ONE would expect Washington to turn out en masse to do honor to President Harding. It is the city of officials, whom duty no less than affection would call to share in the official tribute to the chief executive. But the huge crowds that have gathered along the railway clear across the continent from California to the capital city to stand silent, with bowed heads, as the presidential funeral train passed by, are a better gauge of the loyalty and sorrow of the nation. It was not duty that brought thousands to country railroad stations in the dead of night to stand for a moment as a train went streaking past. It was not curiosity, for there was little to see. It was the spontaneous outpouring of the people's devotion, a mark of the spirit of their citizenship.

In life we criticize presidents mercilessly. It is the American way to regard its public servants, from the smallest to the greatest, as responsible for all that goes wrong. Nor do we lavish praise when things go well, regarding able performance of public duty as no more than the country has a right to expect. So one hears much of dissatisfaction with the government. A stranger might imagine, as indeed many have imagined, that discontent and rebellion were on the verge of open outbreak against our system and its agents. But it is not so. How far it is from being so may be judged by the unanimous grief with which the country received the news of the death of a president who has been more criticized and harried than most of his predecessors. The great crowds of men and women, who stood in silent respect at the passing of the Harding funeral train, gave the true expression of the nation's temper.

The American government rests upon a wide and deeply planted foundation of devotion and confidence of the American people. As in a family where affection can conceive no thought of permanent misunderstanding or division, criticism is quick and plainspoken. But it is our very confidence in the stability of our institutions, our belief that any other form of government for our nation is unthinkable, that leads to this frankness of disagreement. We have no fear that we shall undermine the pillars of the republic, for we believe in them as we do in our religion, or in the natural laws of the universe. This is the fundamental fact, unquestioned and unheeded until some sudden shock, such as the death of President Harding, stops the ebb and flow of criticism and discussion and brings us as individuals to think for a moment of our own relation to the nation and its government. Inevitably the result is such a national demonstration of loyalty and respect as met the presidential funeral train all across the continent. In that spoke the true heart of the nation.

Revolutionists of any stripe, the whole crawling brood of unhealthy gnats that has been pricking and stinging at the body politics with great respect for the noise created by their own buzzings, have been emboldened of late by the wide latitude good-temperedly permitted them in this easy-going and gentle nation. But should they be under the delusion that their propaganda of poison and hate has been making serious progress, that the foundations of the republic are weakening under their assault, we recommend that they take heed of the country's spontaneous demonstration of affection and regard for the late president. For every Red there are shown to be ten thousand loyal Americans, who feel a deep and sincere attachment to their country and its chosen rulers, and who have but to see its institutions seriously challenged to spring in righteous anger to their defense.

Have a Laugh

AN Irishman and a Frenchman got into an argument about the total number of beverages, alcoholic and otherwise, in existence. Pat claimed there were eighty-three. The Frenchman insisted there were only eighty-two. They made a bet.

"I'll name the eighty-three," said Pat. "First, there is water. . . ."

"Ah, you win," the Frenchman interrupted. "I had forgotten all about that one."

This story, told by Dr. W. J. Robinson, the dean of medical writers, suggests that the world prohibition movement eventually will focus on France, which probably will be the last of the important countries to go dry, if ever.

M'Cready Sykes, another able writer, digs up the yarn about the Scotchman who complained that he could never get any real pleasure from smoking.

"If I am smokin' my ain tobacco," said Sandy, "I can na' enjoy it for thinkin' o' the dreadful expense; and if I am smokin' a' ither body's tobacco my pipe is packed so tight that it winna draw."

Economy is a virtue, but it can be carried to the point where it takes all the joy out of life. Epidemic excessive economy, born from fear, usually ends business booms and starts depression. Prosperity is the result of wide-spread spending. No cause for fear, as yet. Continue buying, thereby keeping prosperity with us. The wise system is to be moderate, spending to keep business humming, also saving prudently for emergency.

The Wall Street Journal says a stock exchange firm wanted an experienced bookkeeper. An applicant, who favorably impressed the manager of the brokerage firm, was asked what salary he received on his last job.

"They paid me $125 a week."

"Who gave you that salary?"

A bankrupt bucket-shop was named.

"You apparently got $25 for your work and $100 for keeping quiet," the manager commented.

The jokes of our generation are becoming editorial in nature. Vividly they caricature important events and public trends. We are getting dangerously close to the intellectual in our humor—(dangerous, because intelligence and humor are as difficult to mix as oil and water)—but, after all, much of the news borders on the ridiculous, which makes it the logical target of the humorists.

The American sense of humor is becoming higher grade, more intelligent. If you doubt it, go back and try to get laughs out of the humorists of a few generations ago.

Our Friend, the Turk

THE treaty of peace between the United States and Turkey was signed on Monday. This country got no special favors from Turkey in the treaty, but it might have asked them with some show of reason. American intervention at Lausanne had a lot to do with the extraordinary diplomatic victory of the Turks over the allies and Greece. American support of the Chester concession was a strong card in the Turks' expert appeal to the pocketbook, whereby the allies were outmaneuvered. All in all, the Turks owe the United States a great deal. It is to be hoped that they will remember the service when America goes to the defense of her Christian subjects at some future date, although the calm assumption of Ismet Pasha that the destruction of the Armenians offers no very comforting assurance.

The Back Number

By CORONA REMINGTON

"Why, grandpa, you here!" exclaimed eighteen-year-old Elizabeth Wheeler, as her grandfather walked into the dining room. "Thought this was your morning out," she went on to explain.

Old man MacNichols sat down at the breakfast table and tried to act naturally, but Elizabeth's keen, sympathetic eyes did not fail to notice that his hand shook as he raised the coffee cup to his lips.

Elizabeth's mother, hearing her father's voice, put a flushed face in the doorway leading from the kitchen and stared at the two.

Mr. MacNichols laughed nervously. "Fact is, children," he tried to speak lightly—"I'm a back number. Had to give up my job to a young fellow."

"Oh, grandpa!" came from both in a chorus.

"Way, why, you're the youngest man I know," defended Elizabeth, springing up and putting her arms around her grandfather's shoulders.

"I know, child. That's the way I feel, too; but the railroad says I'm old, and that settles it."

"Oh, oh, it's cruel!" Mrs. Wheeler cried out. "And you've been a wonderful conductor. How could they do it?"

"It's life, Mary. We've got to face it." He tried to be philosophical and treat the matter lightly, but it was rather a tragic breakfast the three had together. Mrs. Wheeler felt lost, baffled; she didn't know how to cope with the matter and longed for her husband. If only he were home he'd know just what to say and do—he always did.

After breakfast Jim MacNichols, or Cap'n Jimmy, as he was affectionately called by his friends, went up to his room and stared at himself in the mirror. Was he old? Did he look old?

There was a dreary little droop to his mouth that he had never seen there before and a thousand wrinkles seemed to have appeared over night.

Strange, he had never noticed all that before; those marks of age simply weren't there before. That was it, they were not lines of age, they were lines of discouragement. The railroad had practically told him that he was a back number—no good any more. Of course, that wasn't the way they had said it, far from it.

He had earned his rest, he had been a faithful servant and they were going to retire him on a pension. Those were the things that he had written. But what was the difference? Words didn't always console thought.

As the days dragged by MacNichols grew more and more depressed. He wandered about the house hunting for something to do. He would hang around Mrs. Wheeler in the kitchen and dry the dishes and try to pare the potatoes, but inwardly realized with disgust that she could do it all so much better than he.

He was probably in the way and she merely tolerated him in the hope of cheering him up. He felt their sympathy and chafed under it. They were pitying him, he knew it, they were sorry—sorry for him! He was not accustomed to needing any one's sympathy.

Several times, he slipped off up-town and tried to get a job, but nobody wanted him. He was old, and he didn't know how to do anything except punch tickets and sign train orders.

He never told his family of his fruitless pilgrimages nor of his gnawing unhappiness and discontent. It could only worry them, and they couldn't remedy it. Besides, they would pity him the more. After all, it was a life, off with the old and on with the new.

He remembered with a peculiar pang of sympathy that he had stepped into an old man's shoes when he got the run on Thirty-eight over twenty years ago. It was just history repeating itself, but it was hard, infernally hard.

Toward the end of winter, Elizabeth went to the country to visit her aunt and while she was gone the house seemed to the old man almost unbearably lonely. Each day was like a week and when at last she came back he was so happy to see her that he could scarcely keep the tears out of his eyes. "Weeping now like an old woman," he said angrily to himself as he brushed a touched head across his face.

"Oh, grandpa, grandpa! I've got the most wonderful news," said Elizabeth throwing her arms around his neck. "But you've got to promise to do something for me before I'll be perfectly happy. I'm going to need you so and I'm so afraid you won't want to do it."

Need him! At the magic words a thrill passed over him and a brightness came into his eyes that had not been there for many a day.

"Tell me all about it," he said.

"Oh, grandpa, I'm going to marry the wonderful man. He lives next to Aunt Anna's. That's how I met him. And we're going to live in a little bungalow 'way out in the country. The plans are all made and he's going to begin building this week. But John's away all the week and I'll be so dreadfully lonely. Won't you, won't you come out and live with us and help me make the garden and feed the chickens? John says he'll worry all the time he's away if I'm alone there. Oh, do say you will!"

She looked up at him with all the winsome pleading of eighteen, and Cap'n Jimmy's voice trembled with excitement and happiness as he answered casually enough:

"I reckon that'd just suit me fine. I was raised in the country, and there ain't a thing I don't know about farm life. We'll have White Leghorns, Betsy. They're grand layers, and they always look so pretty against the green grass. And there'll have to be a couple of pigs to butcher for Thanksgiving and Christmas. And the garden—It's about time to plant now. I better run down to Carleton and see about it right off. I'll go downtown and buy the seeds today."

"Oh, grandpa, you old angel!" cried Elizabeth happily.

It was a joyful family group that discussed their plans for the future that afternoon, and a little later tears sprang into Mrs. Wheeler's eyes as she heard Cap'n Jimmy's quick business-like step in the hallway as he hurried out the front door and down the street in quest of the garden seeds.

"Listen Betsy, he's whistling. It's the first time I've heard the 'Swanee River' since he lost his job," she said.

"Dear, dear old grandpa!" said Betsy softly. "He's been so brave and so miserable."

The board repudiated the contract on July 31, 1921, he states.

MANITOWOC CHIEF DENIES PERMITS FOR OIL TANKS

MANITOWOC.—Chief Kratz of the fire department has refused to issue a permit to the Standard Oil company for sinking tanks at the company's new service station. The chief bases his action on an ordinance passed several years ago, placing storage of oil and explosives under control of the fire department. It is held doubtful that the company can be prohibited from sinking the tanks, because the city has issued a permit to the company to erect a service station on that sight.

BIG REVIEW AND PARADE FRIDAY AT CAMP DOUGLAS

Ceremonies Friday Will Mark End of Second Encampment Period; Blaine to Attend

CAMP DOUGLAS, Wis.—Friday of this week will be the gala day of this second and the last encampment period this year for the Wisconsin National Guard. Adjutant General Ralph Imhoff has designated Friday as Governor's Day.

Ceremonies will actually begin Wednesday night. Governor Blaine arrived in camp Wednesday morning and at night met the officers of the units encamped here and after being presented to them made a brief talk. Friday morning all batteries will be on the firing range and a problem will be shot for the governor. At three o'clock in the afternoon a formal assembly will be staged all troops and units in camp participating. Memorial services will be conducted by Chaplain Captain William T. Dorwood, Milwaukee, for the memory of President Harding.

Review and Parade

At 6:15 the big review and parade will be held. The 1,500 men and officers encamped will be inspected by the governor following which they will parade. Immediately following the parade the 107th Engineers company, from Virginia, will put on a demonstration in bridge building in front of the reviewing point as a special feature. Col. Alvin A. Kueckenhof, commander of the 120th Field Artillery regiment will command the review. Col. Kueckenhof, commander of a battalion of artillery in the 32nd Division throughout the campaigns in France.

The field meet of the camp will be held Saturday morning. Officers of the camp have contributed for the purchase of medals, banners and flags and the men have been putting in their afternoon and evening work in form for the numerous awards. Saturday afternoon, guns, materials and equipment will be packed and made ready for loading on trains Sunday morning. Saturday night Lt. Col. Charles Williams, state quartermaster will pay the troops. Col. Williams at the last camp paid off companies of fifty and sixty men men in less than 15 minutes a company. He expects to pay off the 1,500 men at this camp at the rate of 30 seconds per man.

Paid in Cash

The men under regulations are paid in cash which must be counted out by the quartermaster as well as the soldier. In view of this requirement it can be understood what paying off men at the rate of 30 seconds a man means.

Monday morning the men will begin to depart and by noon will all be enroute to their home stations. This camp closes the National Guard field activities for the year, all work now reverting to the units at their home stations. The Minnesota artillery owing to lack of range will come to Camp Douglas for two weeks training next Wednesday. The federal government has leased the reservation from the state of Wisconsin and is paying all expenses for the handling of the Minnesota Guardsmen.

In Crose's artillery battalion consisting of two batteries, A and B and a Headquarters detachment has participated in all the field firing and performed in a manner to bring them high praise from regular army instructors. The men and officers have made an excellent showing and are being commended for their fine work and esprit-de-corps.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT TO PASS NEW DIVORCE LAWS

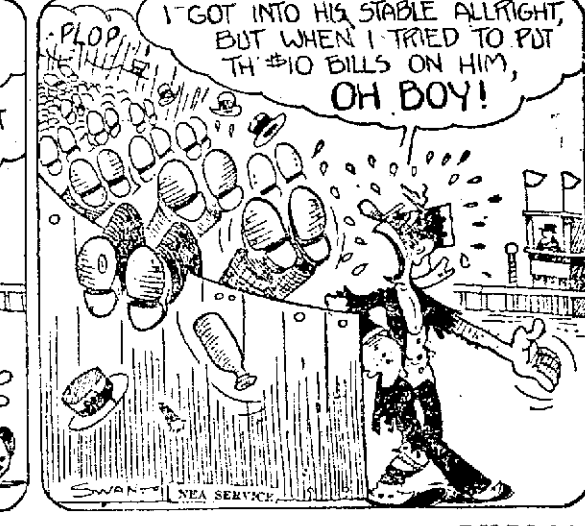

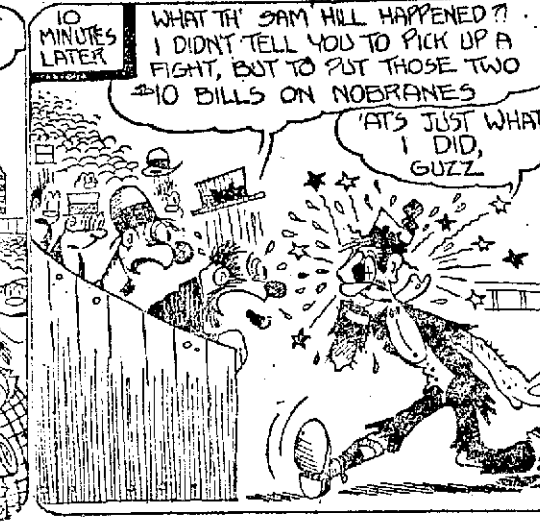

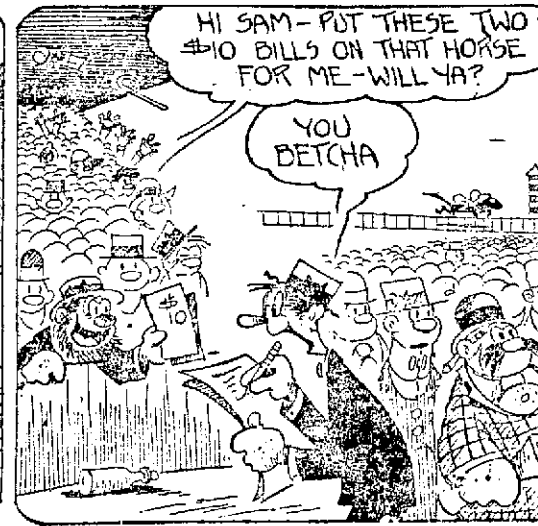

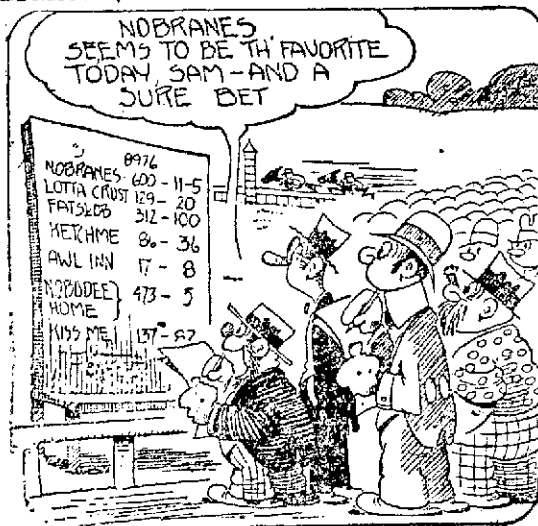

PARIS.—The first four months of the year saw 5,656 French couples divorced, according to statistics just published. In this period the ratio of divorces to marriages was approximately one to twelve. What the Standard Oil Company Means to You

WHEN the Standard Oil Company was born, this country of ours was a land of scattered agriculturists and a few centers of struggling industry.

'Power was limited to the physical endurance of horse and man.

Had you lived then you would have enjoyed few of the comforts which today are a common heritage.

In one generation, living conditions in our country have changed completely.

Today, we are a prosperous nation. Our industrial production is intensive. The world is our market.

Petroleum products, created and manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), have made new industries possible.

Individual opportunities have multiplied in exact ratio to the progress of industry.

New industrial practices and modern refinements have been made possible because petroleum furnished the operating power.

Petroleum supplied the lubricants needed for the speeding up of machinery and the consequent increased production.

With these new practices and the new institutions to manufacture the new products, came new opportunities of all kinds—for labor—for capital—for initiative.

Today you have an automobile—something your father never dreamed of owning.

The fact that you own an automobile is less significant than the fact that the machinery of industry—dependent upon petroleum for its successful operation—has made it possible for so large a percentage of people to own one.

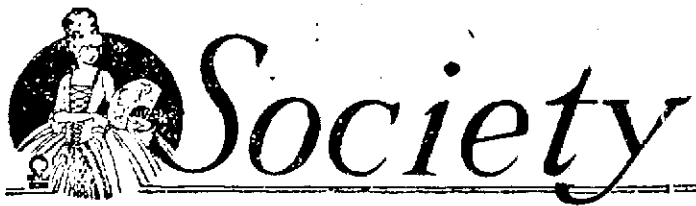

Without petroleum products—the kind of petroleum products manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana)—the brawny arms of every other industry would shrivel to uselessness.

Without Standard Oil Company (Indiana) initiative and industrial daring your standard of living today would be on a different plane.

Turning Straw Into Fertilizer

In England there has been patented a process for the artificial production of effective fertilizer from straw. The straw is subjected to the action of a culture of cellulose destroying organisms with the addition of certain chemicals to start reaction, the final product containing about two percent of nitrogen. It is claimed that a straw crop can be turned into about half its weight of nitrogen-bearing fertilizer by the process.

Sister Mary's KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY CABBAGE

Cabbage is one of the best foods on the market. Use it often and reduce the high cost of living as well as the doctor's bill.

It is rich in iron and contains sulphur and phosphorus to a beneficial degree. Raw cabbage is not hard to digest.

After shredding or chopping cabbage, let it stand in cold salt water for an hour or longer. Drain and rinse in clear cold water. Drain for half an hour before seasoning.

Chopped Cabbage
Two cups chopped cabbage, 2 sweet peppers, 1/2 teaspoon mustard seed, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 4 tablespoons vinegar.

Chop cabbage and peppers very fine. Mix and let stand in a covered dish on ice for an hour. At the same time mix remaining ingredients and let stand. When ready to serve combine mixtures and use at once.

Our Favorite Cabbage
Two cups shredded cabbage, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 6 tablespoons oil of paprika. Put cabbage in mixing bowl and mix well with dry seasoning. Add vinegar and oil and beat well. Sprinkle with paprika and serve.

One-half medium sized head cabbage, 1 cup sour cream, 3 teaspoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup vinegar.

Shred cabbage very fine and put in mixing bowl. Sprinkle with sugar and salt and beat until stiff, keeping very cold. Mix well with cabbage and serve at once.

Cabbage Salad
Two cups shredded cabbage, 1 sour apple, 1/4 cup English walnut meats, 1 tablespoon powdered sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 tablespoon oil.

Mix cabbage and chopped apple with sugar and salt. Add vinegar, mixing thoroughly. Add oil and beat well with a fork. Arrange on salad plates and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Cabbage with Lemon Juice
Three cups shredded cabbage, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 lemon, paprika.

Squeeze juice from lemon and strain. Add dry ingredients to cabbage and bruise slightly. Add lemon juice and let stand 10 minutes before serving.

New cabbage is delicious in a jelly salad. Add 1 cup shredded cabbage, 2 sweet green peppers (shredded) and one shredded pimiento to one box prepared lemon jelly. Mold and chill and serve on a bed of lettuce with a boiled salad dressing.

Suggestions for the Household

CLEANING NICKEL
Nickel does not tarnish readily and is easily cleaned in soap and water. When it does become stained a paste of whiting or any fine scourer will remove it.

SILK GARMENTS
Silk garments should never be wrung when you wash them. They should be squeezed gently, or put between cloths and put through the wringer.

CABBAGE
Before cooking cabbage or cauliflower, lay it into a bowl of cold water with a tablespoon of salt.

USE OF ALUM
Alum is very effective for cleaning water and setting colors. It is said also to make cloth non-inflammable.

ICE CREAM
When ice cream refuses to come out of the mold, pour a little cold water over the outside of the can. It will melt it sufficiently to loosen the cream from the mold, but not enough to spoil the shape.

LABELED PRESERVES
Cut short lengths of white paper and print on them the names of the jellies, preserves and pickles you have put into jars. Being gummed they are easily attached.

COLORS FABRICS
When washing and rinsing colored fabrics, add a tablespoon of epsom salts to each gallon of water and they will not fade or run.

Terms have been agreed on for the settlement of 6000 British families on farms in New South Wales.

WOULDEST BE A SHEIK?

There usually comes a time when one can dress the part that could suit one best in life. That's at a masquerade! What man wouldn't want to be a sheik with a harem in Arabia—or somewhere conveniently nearer?

Here's what a real sheik would dress like if he were living the part instead of playing it. The turban has ends flying down the back. The waistcoat and breeches are of corduroy, and the sash of red or purple silk.

The lady with him, who for respectability's sake may call Mrs. Sheik, is attired in the matchless manner of the favorites of the harem.

PICTURE HATS
Large picture hats of black velvet are trimmed with flowers of white organdie. Sometimes the brim is lined with the organdie.

JEWELLED CLASPS
Jeweled clasps in oriental colorings are used for fastening some of the most elaborate fur coats.

NEW DEVICE FOR CUTTING BIAS FOLDS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—Mother may thank Mrs. Dora Delaney of this city when she sits down to measure and fold and cut material for her own and baby's dresses.

For Mrs. Delaney has invented a device by which all this cutting and folding into hems, ruffles and bands is reduced to the least amount of work. And all it consists of is one of the gilt knobs atop baby's crib, two discs of a watch and a discarded six-inch tin tube about three-eighths inch in diameter.

Delaney got the idea for this device after struggling through pleats and ruffles and hems of all sorts until it made her dizzy. Too tired to continue this sewing, she started working with her brain.

The result was this invention for which Mrs. Delaney says she has just received an offer of $5,000!

The labor-saving invention is called a "Handy Help," and is made to fit on any pair of scissors. While the dressmaker cuts the cloth for a bias fold, or a two-inch ruffle or a band the little "Handy Help," sifts chalk through tiny perforations and marks a line exactly where she wants it for the next cut.

Think of the joy of snipping gaily down long lengths of grievous crepe de chine for a bias fold and not having to measure and turn down the width, or the next fold!

Mrs. Delaney is marketing her invention by herself and she has a corps of salespeople selling them for her.

FAVORITE COIFFURE
The favorite coiffure of the moment is the center part, with the hair brought down into a neck bun over each ear. This more distinctive to wear it straight than have it waved.

OUTDOOR SPORTS IN ARGENTINE PUT END TO SUNDAY FLIRTING

Beauty Parading No Longer Sole Amusement for Youth of Southern Republic

BUENOS AIRES.—Beauty parading and idle street flirtations, heretofore the Spanish colonial pastime of the Argentine youth, are becoming a thing of the past. The devotion given by Argentine youth to outdoor sports in the last decade, first by the young men and now in growing measure by the young women, is held accountable for the change.

Twenty-five years ago, the young men of Buenos Aires, stiffly attired in black, with high polo collars and high patent leather shoes, devoted their Sunday and Saturday afternoons to strolling along the avenues or loitering on street corners with an aim, mainly, for pretty girls. The girls, decked out with the knowledge that they were to be admired, devoted to some artifice to "coquet" the strolling youth, by "coquet" riding, wearing a "beauty parade" as the girls drew them along the avenues or the grounds of young men with a highly dignified smile and flirtatious glances. This was the life of the Argentine youth in those days, as the older generation.

Today in Buenos Aires there is hardly a vacant lot on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday afternoon that is not the scene of a football game. The matches are in progress on hundreds of courts, self-built, some existing, others of eight different courses, with racing seats, the water, and the heavy rain, propelled by a running arm, on running tracks, young men in spiked shoes seek to make records in the hundred meter dash, the hurdles and like events, swimming, basketball and boxing are numerous devotees, while young men of wealth indulge in polo and back yard races on the River Plate, the formal Sunday-afternoon black, a generation ago has been succeeded by light tweeds, hom-spuns, jannels and sport clothes. The young men have less time to flirt.

While the young women have not entirely abandoned the old Spanish custom of "beauty parading" for a semblance of it can still be seen on the Calle Florida at the noon hour on week days, they, too, as if discouraged by the death of admirers on holidays, have taken to outdoor sports in increasing numbers. Infected first by golf, tennis and swimming, they have begun to indulge in track meets, simulated doubtless by the example of their American, British and French sisters in the Northern Hemisphere. Several of these "thoroughbred" women have resulted in the formation of two feminine athletic clubs and now it is proposed to found the Argentine Feminine Athletic Federation.

The British immigrants are credited with giving the initial impulse to the pursuit in Argentina by introducing their outdoor games and activities, together with "Saturday clubs," as the Saturday half-holiday is called. Favored by a temperate climate, it has gathered such momentum within the past few years that any observers think Argentina will soon take its place among the "outdoor nations" like the United States and Great Britain.

Encouragement of outdoor sports is one of the special policies of President Alvear, who shows his interest in kicking off a big football game, and attending many sport events, while he sets an example himself as a devoted golfer.

THIRTY-FIVE THOUSAND VIEW BODY OF DEAD PRESIDENT AS IT LIES IN STATE IN CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, D. C.—By The Associated Press.—Warren Harding's countrymen came in uncounted numbers to do him honor as he lay in the quiet, austere chamber under the dome of the capitol.

From early morning they began to gather to await the hour when they would be permitted to pass silently by his body, and when his casket was opened a half hour after the funeral ceremonies were concluded, the waiting column stretched for blocks.

They moved through the rotunda two abreast, one line going to the right and the other to the left of the casket. Capitol officials estimated that they were passing by at the rate of 4,000 an hour.

It was one o'clock before the first of the crowd waiting outside in the capitol grounds were admitted to the rotunda where the dead president lay, and from then on ever increasing numbers came to file slowly by the casket and through the rotunda past the floor, youth and age, rich and poor, the representatives of nearly every race were in the solemn procession. There were many children, who had to be lifted in the arms of parents to look upon the dead. Many of them wanted to linger there but the lines were kept moving rapidly in the hope that none of those waiting would have to be disappointed.

35,000 File Past Bier

No less than 35,000 people filed through the rotunda during the first hour, the body lay in state and looked upon the face of the dead president through the glass covering of the casket. Thousands were turned away when the great bronze doors of the rotunda swung shut at five o'clock and the flag-draped casket was removed from the capitol and placed on board the train which brought it across the continent and started westward shortly after six o'clock.

Washington bid it a sad adieu.

CHICAGO OPERA TO HAVE NEW STARS FOR 1923 SEASON

French Tenor to Make American Debut With Civic Company; Season Opens Nov. 8

CHICAGO.—Fernand Anseaux, leading tenor in French opera, will make his American debut with the Chicago Civic Opera, which opens here November 8, according to the announcement made by the company. Arrangements are being made for the appearance of other brilliant vocalists, which will include Miss Louise Homr. She will appear in a limited number of performances including "Sigmund and Delilah."

Other stars included in the regular personnel of the company for the coming season will be Mary Garden, Amelia Galli-Curci, Florence Strelow, Mary McFadden, Cyrena Van Gorden, George Baklanoff, Tito Schipa, Edith Mason and Freder Chalmers, with Gloria Polanco again present as musical director.

"Boris Godunoff" and "L'Africain" the latter by Meyerbeer, are announced as novelties in the 1923-24 season, because they never before have been given by the Civic Opera Company. The role of Boris is said by critics to be one of Chalmers' greatest. Among the revivals announced is that of "Zaza" with Mary Garden in the title role. Miss Garden will appear in the revival of Massenet's "Cleopatra."

Harry W. Beatty, technical director, is spending the summer in Europe visiting the more famous opera houses of France, Germany and Italy in search of new ideas. He is said to be making a special study of proposed settings in Moussinsky's "Boris Godunoff," which has become popular with American audiences.

The opening of the opera season November 8 is a departure from custom, as the season will open Thursday instead of the usual Monday and RACINE, Wis.—The Racine county board of supervisors Thursday changed the name of the railroad junction village of Cordell to that of Intervent. The change was made at a request of the village board and friends of the concern which recently purchased the plant of Cordell paper company. Originally the community was known as Western Union junction.

BIRTHPLACE OF NEW PRESIDENT

This country store—typical New England general store and post-office—is doubly distinctive. In this building in Plymouth, Vt., President Calvin Coolidge was born on the fourth of July in 1872. And it was in this store, possessing the only telephone in Plymouth, that the official news of Mr. Harding's death was received from San Francisco. As vice president, Mr. Coolidge daily tramped between his father's farmhouse and the store to get bulletins on the sick president's condition. Inset shows the president.

Other stars included in the regular personnel of the company for the coming season will be Mary Garden, Amelia Galli-Curci, Florence Strelow, Mary McFadden, Cyrena Van Gorden, George Baklanoff, Tito Schipa, Edith Mason and Freder Chalmers, with Gloria Polanco again present as musical director.

"Boris Godunoff" and "L'Africain" the latter by Meyerbeer, are announced as novelties in the 1923-24 season, because they never before have been given by the Civic Opera Company. The role of Boris is said by critics to be one of Chalmers' greatest. Among the revivals announced is that of "Zaza" with Mary Garden in the title role. Miss Garden will appear in the revival of Massenet's "Cleopatra."

Harry W. Beatty, technical director, is spending the summer in Europe visiting the more famous opera houses of France, Germany and Italy in search of new ideas. He is said to be making a special study of proposed settings in Moussinsky's "Boris Godunoff," which has become popular with American audiences.

The opening of the opera season November 8 is a departure from custom, as the season will open Thursday instead of the usual Monday and

HONEY PRODUCERS PLAN TO SET UP STANDARD GRADES

MADISON, Wis.—Money producers meeting here August 13 to 18 are confronted with the problem of determining what white honey is white.

Three hundred samples of honey have been gathered from various parts of the United States and Canada and an effort to establish a set of national color grades when the Bee men of the country gather for their annual chautauqua at Madison, August 13 to 18.

Honey varies in color from a water white to a shade which borders on black. In order to maintain a standard, commercial concern mix the light and dark products. This is no way impairs the quality of the honey.

The hundreds of samples which have been gathered will be compared and all of the visiting beemen will have an opportunity to express their opinion. Honey producers in various parts of the country differ as to just what a water white honey looks like and it is for the purpose of having all producers recognize a certain set standard color that these national color grades are going to be established.

Thence, they were gathered in the villages, they stood at the road crossings, and many looked on from corn and oats fields and pastures. All came to pay a final tribute to the dead in the last car who in life had known so many of them and so well that he called them by their first names and they spoke of him, not as "Mr. President," but as "Warren Harding."

Only Service at Cemetery

The elaborate services Wednesday were for Warren G. Harding, president of the United States; the simple services here Friday will be for Warren G. Harding, citizen, friend, neighbor and husband.

For two days his friends and neighbors will accord the late president the customary funeral rites of the small towns of the middle west and then, with strict simplicity will accompany Mrs. Harding and the body to the cemetery where it will be entombed Friday afternoon.

The only funeral services here will be extremely brief and simple, in accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Harding. Only relatives and intimate friends will make up the small party going to the cemetery. Even newspapermen will be excluded from the services at the tomb. When the funeral train arrives here, the coffin will be taken immediately to the home of the dead president's father, Dr. George T. Harding, Sr., in east Center street. The trip from the station to the father's home will be made in a hearse.

Public to be Admitted

At his father's home the body will lie in private until 2 o'clock this afternoon; from then until 10 o'clock tonight the public will be permitted to gaze upon the kindly face of the former Marion newspaper publisher, who became chief executive of his country.

Again tomorrow, from 9 a. m. until 2 p. m. the public will have a last opportunity to pass by the bier of Mr. Harding. At 2 o'clock the funeral procession will form for the journey to the cemetery and at 3 o'clock the body of Warren G. Harding will be laid to rest.

It will be placed in a receiving vault until a suitable mausoleum can be erected.

Members of the intimate party that made the trip to Alaska with President Harding are aboard the funeral train.

Coolidge Comes Friday

President Coolidge, members of the cabinet and other high government officials, who as private citizens will attend the funeral services here will arrive tomorrow at 11 a. m. on another special train. It was Mrs. Harding's wish, and her wish is law in her home town.

In today's funeral procession from the station to the Harding home and in the last journey tomorrow from the home to the cemetery there will not be heard the tramping feet of soldiers, no civic or other organizations will be in line. Only the family and intimate friends will directly follow the hearse.

Mrs. Harding's desire for a simple, private funeral for her husband resulted in the cancellation of plans for Ohio newspaper publishers, members of the Associated Ohio Ladies, in which Mr. Harding was an active worker, to march in the procession as a body.

Troops Patrol Streets

Although there will be no military escort today or tomorrow, 3,000 Ohio National Guard troops today patrolled the streets of Marion, keeping back the huge crowds of Ohioans and people from other states who came to pay their last respects to their dead chief.

Marion was crowded to overflowing this morning and thousands were blackening the highways leading into the city. So great was the crush that state authorities stationed patrols along the main roads to prevent speeding and consequent injuries or loss of life.

Hundreds of Marion residents opened their homes to care for the many visitors who could not find hotel quarters. Many motorists came prepared with tents and camping outfits.

Business at Standstill

Business will practically be at a standstill in Marion today and tomorrow. The whole city plans to give itself up to deep mourning. On some streets near the Harding home, the cemetery and old home made famous by the front porch campaign, the only activities of a usual nature will be the deliveries of milk and ice. The Marion Star, the newspaper that until recently was owned and published by President Harding, will suspend publication tomorrow in order that

SUMMER CAMPS TO DRAW 30 THOUSAND FROM CIVILIAN LIFE

Twenty-five Training Camps Conducted by Government During August

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—In the last days of July some 30,000 young men left their homes to spend a month in one or another of the 25 Citizens' Military camps, which the government has organized for this summer, according to the announcement made by the Military Training Camps association here recently.

Health in mind, body and character is the primary aim of the Citizens' camps to which young men between 17 and 24 are admitted for a month of training at government expense, and these camps are located at carefully selected sites in various parts of the country, so that no one need travel more than two or three hundred miles from his own home.

In making the announcement, George T. James, the executive secretary of the association, says:

"The camps are conducted by the most competent officers of the Regular army, the National guard and the Organized Reserves, and no pains are spared to make the month of training an enjoyment and a profit to all who attend. Applicants are accepted only after careful physical examination and with the endorsement of good character from reliable citizens, and in every detail the camps live up to the highest standards of American home life."

All expenses, including transportation, are paid by the government, but in return it asks that every young man go to camp with an earnest desire to return a better citizen. No finer education ideal can be found in all history since the days of ancient Greece than underlies the Citizens' camps of 1923. The daily program is devised to interest and strengthen young men in every possible way. The morning hours are given to a carefully graduated course of military training from ordinary infantry drill through a succession of four years in the specialized work of other branches of the service, the cavalry, engineer, field and coast artillery, signal corps and air service. The afternoons are devoted to all forms of physical training and athletics, including baseball, handball, volleyball, tennis, swimming, boxing, wrestling and track work, all under expert direction and conducted with a view to physical health and good sportsmanship. Ample entertainment is arranged for the evening hours.

Religious life is not neglected, since provision is made for voluntary worship on appropriate occasions for men of all faiths. Army Chaplains look after the moral welfare of the men enrolled and army hostesses arrange their social gatherings. Commandants and well arranged quarters are provided with libraries, reading rooms, cards, checkers and chess tables and pianos. The government provides a daily ration of nearly 70c and competent cooks prepare meals which compare most favorably with the best family or hotel tables. The men are quartered either in permanent barracks or in tent cities, carefully laid out in company streets; not more than six men to each large size army tent on comfortable beds, every tent with substantial board flooring."

The Military Training Camps association of the United States is promoting the summer camps and securing through its nation-wide organization the interest and co-operation of prominent citizens in every part of the country.

SPECIAL SESSION WON'T HELP FARMER SAYS BADGER SOLON

WASHINGTON.—Diverse views regarding the necessity for an extra session of congress were expressed Thursday by Senator Shipstead, Minnesota, farmer-labor member, and Representative John M. Nelson, republican, La Follette supporter from Wisconsin, at separate conferences with President Coolidge.

Senator Shipstead urged the president to call congress at once to enact agricultural relief measures, but Representative Nelson, although emphasizing the needs of agriculture, said an extra session would be of no service at the time.

LA FOLLETTE MEN LAUNCH FIGHT FOR THE PRESIDENCY

First Move to Gather in Wisconsin Delegates to Convention Made on Wednesday

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — The Milwaukee Journal Thursday says: "What politicians consider the first move on the part of Senator R. M. La Follette to gather in the Wisconsin delegates to the republican presidential convention of 1924, was taken Wednesday at a quiet meeting in the perches building when the county La Follette progressive association was organized and new officers elected. "While the officers say that those present decided to 'keep the organization impersonal' and that it will work only for the principle for which Senator La Follette stands, some see in the move preparation for the gubernatorial fight in the La Follette ranks next year. "Attorney William A. Schroeder was elected county president to succeed James F. Trotman. Mr. Trotman asked to be relieved of the office because of ill health. An executive committee, which will have charge of the selection of all other committees was elected. The new members are

A. C. Dick, Eugene Wengert, Martin Schoettler, J. M. O'Rourke, Eric Stern, C. J. Cummings, George M. Block and Mr. Schroeder. The meeting was attended by E. J. Gross, president of the state La Follette organization. "Mr. Schroeder was a member of the 1917 assembly and was the only member from Milwaukee county who opposed the resolution condemning Senator La Follette. He denies that the reorganization at this time has any relation to the fight now in progress between Governor Blaine, Senator Severson, Lieutenant Governor Comings and other La Follette adherents. "We will take part in no personal fights," Mr. Schroeder declared. "Our organization stands simply for those things which have been so clearly defined by Senator La Follette. We have about 1,000 paid members in Milwaukee county, but we propose to extend the organization until a much larger number is enrolled. Naturally, if Senator La Follette becomes a candidate for president, we will be instructed to vote for him." "Some of the friends of Governor Blaine, however, see in the sudden activity of the La Follette organization at this time a determination to participate in the coming state fracas." At the beginning of the present year there were 46,648 serviceable locomotives in use on the railroads of the United States.

Map of Northern States Power Co. System Showing Addition of the Properties of the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light & Power Co.

The recent consolidation of the properties of the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light & Power Company with those of the Northern States Power Company means that the Northern States Company will render service to more than 450 cities and towns with about 1 1/4 millions population.

These two companies have served large contiguous areas. They are already connected at two points by transmission lines. Their consolidation will mean better service and further assurance of ample power supply in the future.

The Northern States Power Company System is now supplied with 110,000 horsepower of developed water power and 175,000 horsepower of steam power. There are more than 2,200 miles of transmission lines.

Construction projects under way and planned will add a large amount of additional power. With a large number of diversely located water and steam power sources—thirty-seven in all—it will be possible to safeguard service interruptions in a manner not possible before.

This consolidation is a logical step in electrical development. Engineers have long recognized that the electrical demands of the public can be met and efficiency of production and the lowest selling costs obtained, only by the creation of great power systems.

Linked by long distance transmission lines, widely separated water powers and steam plants can be operated together most economically and towards the highest conservation of natural resources. Such a plan is the basis of the "interconnected power systems" favored by the United States Government.

As time goes on it will be fully realized that the addition of the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light & Power Company's properties to those of the Northern States Power Company is one of the most important transactions which has taken place in years for the benefit of the public of Western Wisconsin and Southern Minnesota.

Natural and urban conditions—not the artificial barrier of state lines—have guided and been responsible for the development of Northern States Power Company, whose enlarged system will be the means of keeping down and further reducing the cost of electric energy in this and neighboring communities.

This Company is owned by more than 25,000 citizens, 90 per cent of them residents of the territories served. It is administered on the theory that the operation of a utility property is a public trust, and that the ideal of the "square deal" must control its actions if it is to continue to succeed.

We hope that we will have your good will and that you will, sooner or later, join our large family of shareholders and become one of the many owners of what is truly "a great service company owned by the public".

FORMER INSURANCE COMMISSIONER BACK FROM ALASKAN TRIP

Interesting Data on Far Northern Territory Furnished by Whitman

MADISON, Wis.—There is no housing problem in Alaska.

In the city of Dawson you can buy a house and lot with the house entirely furnished for $50. One man recently purchased a house furnished complete including a piano for $150. An Alaska lumber yard is about as scarce as a north pole refrigerator plant.

This is the information brought back by Platt Whitman, former state insurance commissioner, who has just returned from an Alaskan trip. During the gold rush Dawson had 40,000 people; now it has 4,000. When the gold boom became extinct people moved out of the country and deserted their homes as they stood. Hundreds of these buildings are still vacant, the furniture still standing where it was placed by the owner during the chase for gold nuggets.

Alaskan milk comes in cans because there are no cows. It costs too much to feed them through the long winters. It would require a heating plant to raise chickens and as a result there are none of these.

One hotel advertises fresh milk and the proprietor does a rushing business with a couple of cows.

A quarter is the smallest coin in use. Small dimes sell at 25 cents a copy.

The Yukon district has a total of 67 automobiles. Except for short stretches near the cities there are no roads. Around the cities there are several running a bus service for tourists. Gasoline retails at about $1.25 a gallon.

The country is overrun with dogs who are left to seek their food in the summer. They become the transportation motors of winter.

Mr. Whitman was in Alaska while President Harding was in the country. He never succeeded in reaching the same point with the president. He declared that there was much interest in the visit of the nation's chief executive.

POTATO CROP THIS YEAR TWO-THIRDS OF NORMAL OUTPUT

MADISON, Wis.—The Wisconsin potato crop is estimated by Paul Nyhus, state crop reporter, to be 67 per cent of last year's harvest, due to a 17 per cent reduction in acreage and a lower condition. The forecast for the Wisconsin crop is 27,000,000 bushels as compared to 41,000,000 bushels last year and 21,000,000 bushels in 1921.

Farmers of the state report that the August 1 condition of potatoes was 82 per cent of normal, which is ten points below last year's production. Rainfall has been uneven and the condition of the crop is accordingly spotted depending upon the amount of local showers. The crop is reported to have made poor growth in the central part of the state during July. In the northern part the growth was less severe and the crop more promising.

Wisconsin tobacco on August 1 indicates a crop of 50,000,000 pounds compared to 46,000,000 pounds produced last year and 61,000,000 in 1921. The condition of the crop on August 1 was 51 per cent of normal, the crop reported announced. This is the same condition as that of last year. Weather conditions at the time of planting were said to have been somewhat unfavorable, which together with the dry spell has made the plants somewhat short.

CROP REPORT

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Synopsis of weather and crop conditions in Wisconsin for the week ending Tuesday, August 7:

Temperatures were moderate and light scattered showers occurred on several days during the week. The rains were beneficial, but there was hardly enough for growing crops, which in many localities are suffering for lack of sufficient moisture. Small grains are mostly harvested and in grain areas are being cut. Harvesting is progressing under favorable conditions. The yields of oats and barley vary from fair to good; spring wheat poor to fair. Corn is mostly good but uneven. Much of the crop is in silk. Some cutting and firing was reported on light soils and on highlands. Some early corn is being cut for silage. Potatoes are mostly in good condition. Early varieties are being dug; yields and quality fair. Pastures have dried up in many localities and some stock is being fed. Truck, fruit and cranberries are in fair to good condition. Early tobacco is heading out too soon on account of the dry weather and topping has begun.

Advertisement Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calomel powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of calomel powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR GEORGE FRAZER HELD ON SATURDAY

HOME RUNS RESPONSIBLE FOR BEATING HANDED BOTH MAJOR LEAGUE LEADERS WEDNESDAY

CHICAGO—By The Associated Press.—Both the league leaders were defeated by homers Wednesday, the New York Americans in New York and the Giants in St. Louis. The Giants' death knell was rung in the eighth inning when Al Smith stepped to the plate, leaped heavily on a hot one from Bentley and stroled around the bases while the New York team chased the ball. The St. Louis Cardinals won, 4 to 3.

In Pittsburgh Dizzy Vance pitched the Brooklyn Nationals to a 9 to 2 victory in the opening game of a double header, and the Pirates controlled the second, 5 to 2. Carey made two runs in the second half, one of them a homer.

The Chicago Nationals trimmed the Philadelphia Nationals, 3 to 2 in Chicago, taking the two winning runs in the seventh and eighth innings, one of them a non-stolen affair by Preiberg.

In Philadelphia the Chicago Americans defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 3. Galloway was the star of the game with a double, a single and a fine one-handed stop of a fly ball of second.

The Boston Americans and Detroit broke even in a double header in New England, the first going to the Tigers, 4 to 6, and the second to the home team, 3 to 2.

Other games were not scheduled. George Dauss won his fourteenth victory of the season when Detroit whitewashed Boston in the first game of a double-header. George Burns' drive over the left field fence broke a tie score and gave Boston the second game of the twin bill.

Jimmy Austin won his first game as manager when the St. Louis Americans broke out New York and got an even break of the four game series. Ken Williams won the game when he bagged his 21st homer with a man on base.

Red Faber of the Chicago Americans pitched in his old time form while his team mates, baited out a victory over Philadelphia.

Dizzy Vance displayed his usual effectiveness against the Pittsburgh Nationals and Brooklyn won the first game of a double-header. It was Vance's ninth consecutive victory. He made a fine one-handed stop of a fly ball of second.

The Chicago Nationals did some timely hitting against Jimmy Galloway and defeated Philadelphia. Tony Kauffman of the Cubs held the Phillies to five hits, never being in danger after the first game.

Public Almsmith, St. Louis backstop, cracked out a four bagger in the eighth inning and chalked up a victory over the New York Nationals.

THE PLAY

Here is a new play involving the coach.

With a runner on first, the batsman hits to the third baseman, who fumbles the ball, and seeing he has no chance to make a play at second, carries his throw to get the man at first. The throw is bad and bounds off the first baseman's glove.

The coach gets in front of the ball so that he deflects it into the home team's dugout. Under the rules a thrown ball that goes into the dugout entitles everybody to advance two bases.

The umpire thought the coach intentionally interfered with the throw, the runners, under the rules, were compelled to stop at the base last touched by them.

Instead of permitting the runner on first to go to third and the batter to second since the overthrow went into the dugout, which ordinarily entitles all runners to advance two bases, the runner on first should be held at second and the batter at first.

THE INTERPRETATION

Since the umpire thought the coach intentionally interfered with the throw, the runners, under the rules, were compelled to stop at the base last touched by them.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS SCANNING COUNTRY FOR NEW COACH

Wires and Letters Being Sent Out in Search of High School Coach

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT OF SECURING CAPABLE COACH

Matter Taken up at Teachers' Meeting Wednesday

WITH the resignation Wednesday of George Keogan, athletic director, the board of education of La Crosse high school was today busily engaged scanning the country by wire and letter in the task of securing the names of a number of available men from among whom a successor for the athletic directorship will be chosen.

The resignation of Mr. Keogan came suddenly and as a surprise to local school officials; but with about a month intervening before the opening of school, officials were confident that an able successor could be supplied.

"While we have the names of a number of good men in our files who no doubt could be secured, we are sending wires and letters in search of new applicants for the position," said R. E. McCormick, superintendent of schools Thursday. Mr. McCormick expressed confidence that a capable coach could be secured in view of the fact that the position at the La Crosse high school is an attractive one.

The matter was brought up before the teachers' meeting at the high school Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Keogan was selected as assistant to Coach Knute Rockne at Notre Dame.

COUNTY BOARDS OF STATE PREPARING DANCE HALL RULES

Unlicensed Public Dance Halls to Come Under County Supervision

BROWN COUNTY HAS ORDINANCE FOR ADOPTION IN NOVEMBER

Proposes License Fee of Six Dollars for Each Dance

MADISON, Wis.—The unlicensed public dance hall, described by judges and legislators as the greatest menace to the morals of the Wisconsin youth, is about to come within the scope of regulation.

County boards, operating under the new highway laws, enacted by the 1923 session of the legislature, are preparing in all parts of the state to adopt ordinances regulating dance halls and getting up regulations that will curtail some of their allegedly immoral tendencies.

Herman Sechsen, prohibition commissioner, expressed the opinion that through dance hall regulation counties can aid materially in the suppression of moonshine traffic. Under present conditions these public dance halls are said to be one of the chief sources of trouble for liquor law enforcement officers.

Brown county, one of the first to give consideration to dance hall regulation under the new highway laws, has come to an agreement on provisions of a new ordinance to be proposed to the county board of supervisors when they meet in November. Regular board meetings are held in all counties November 12.

Under the Brown county proposal the following regulations would be set up:

All dance halls would obtain licenses from county board.

Licenses fee for each dance, $6.

Licenses must be applied for 72 hours before dance is given.

Dance halls satisfactory regulated by provisions of city and village ordinances would be exempt from county supervision.

No dance shall be conducted except under the supervision of a dance supervisor.

Thirty dance supervisors would be appointed by county board. They would have power of deputy sheriffs in each dance or place of supervisor.

Supervisors would be paid $2 an evening, the money to come from the funds obtained by issuing licenses.

Persons under 16 years of age would not be admitted to public dances unless accompanied by parent or legal guardian.

Persons under influence of liquor or drugs would be barred from the dance floor.

All dances must close at 12:35 o'clock a. m. and halls must be closed by 1 a. m.

No "moonlight" dances or dances in the night time with dim or extinguished lights would be permitted.

All roller skating rinks would be licensed.

Violations of any of the above provisions of the ordinance would result in a fine of not less than $25 and not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days in the county jail and not more than one year in state prison, or by both fine and imprisonment.

Persons convicted would lose their licenses.

A HEALTHY SCALP GROWS BEAUTIFUL HAIR

You can't have beautiful hair unless your scalp is thoroughly clean. It is impossible for any head of hair to be beautiful unless it is kept clean and free from the dust, dirt, dandruff and grime which not only mar the beauty of hair but stifle the healthy normal action of the scalp pores.

Your scalp can't be thoroughly clean unless you use Fitch Shampoo because no other shampoo combines the two necessary elements for the thorough cleansing and invigoration of the hair and scalp.

The tonic in Fitch Dandruff Remover Shampoo actually penetrates into every pore and hair follicle thereby invigorating the growth of hair. It dissolves every particle of dirt, grease or other foreign substances. The shampoo then is gradually released by the application of water and, when rubbed out and rinsed, carries with it all dandruff, dirt and foreign substances, leaving every pore open and functioning as nature intended. Your first Fitch Shampoo will leave no doubt in your mind. You'll know "by the feel" that your hair and scalp were never thoroughly clean before.

Enough Fitch Dandruff Remover Shampoo to last for months costs but little at any toilet counter.

"CHICK" EVANS IS SUMMONED IN CHECK TANGLE AT CHICAGO

Arrested on Charge of Passing $7,500 Check; Refuses to Make it Good

CHICAGO, Ill.—Charles "Chick" Evans Jr., idol of Chicago golf fans, will be summoned to appear before Judge John F. O'Connell in the South Clark street court on next Tuesday afternoon to show cause why the judge should refuse to grant the request of Charles J. Moore, of 2119 Montrose avenue, for a warrant for the golfer's arrest on a charge of operating a crooked game.

Application for the warrant was made Wednesday before Judge O'Connell by Mrs. Bessie Sullivan Hepting, former assistant state's attorney, who represents Moore.

"Chick" Out of City

Evans did not appear in court, as he was out of the city on business. His brother, Eliot H. Evans, an attorney, attached to the office of the city prosecutor, was in court, accompanied by the golfer's attorney. They asked for a continuance so Evans might be present.

Evans was asked on a charge that he passed a check for $7,500 and refused to make it good when it was returned marked "not sufficient funds."

The transaction upon which the action was based took place eight months ago, according to Attorney Hepting. At that time Moore was operating as a grain commission man, with offices at 327 South La Salle street. He was a member of the Board of Trade and holder of a clearing house membership.

MOVIES

"SHERLOCK HOLMES"

There are several reasons why the screen production of "Sherlock Holmes" differs from most motion picture plays. In the first place it bears the name of that imposing star, John Barrymore, who unfortunately is too seldom seen on the screen. In addition to this leading dramatic actor, who plays the title role, others in cast include such names as Roland Young, who plays part of Watson, the villainous Moriarty is played by Gustav von Seyffertitz, formerly stage director of Charles Frohman and a character actor for many years, Louis Wolheim, who is now creating a sensation on the stage by his portrayal of the rough-neck stoker in "The Hairy Ape," is another member of the cast. Among others are Percival Knight, Reginald Denny, Albert Branning, Lumsden Hare, John Willard, who not only is appearing in "The Hairy Ape" but is also the author, Carol Dempster, Hedda Hopper and other well-known men and women of the stage and screen.

In order to get the proper atmosphere the producer did not attempt to manufacture stage backgrounds, but instead transported entire company to England and later Switzerland. Scenes were taken in the old section of London, Baker street, the house to which the world has been a track, Lincoln and St. John's College, Cambridge, in Switzerland.

Even the comparatively small parts were carefully thought out and portrayed by such well known artists as J. P. Lockney, William Courtwright, Bert Offord, Dick Southernland and Gus Leonard, while the bigger parts were taken by Marjorie Mauborgne, Philip Dunham, Jack Richardson and Andrew Arbuckle.

There are lots of those human touches which are so associated with every photoplay in which Charles Ray appears in "The Deuce of Spades" now at the Majestic Theater. The characters in the small mingling town are lifelike, and are sketched with fidelity from the story from which the photoplay was adapted, Charles Van Nostrand's "The Weight of the Last Straw."

An amazing example of rapid plant growth is found in the case of the fly fungus, which reaches full maturity within twelve hours from the time the cap first pierces the surface of the ground. It is extremely poisonous, containing a large content of muscarine, a poisonous alkaloid. It resembles the edible type but has underneath the cap a series of spores on which are produced the spores.

COMINGS GOES BACK TO LA FOLLETTE'S PLATFORM OF 1920

Scores Lack of Specific Promises in Platform of Two Years Ago

CANDIDATE ALSO ENDORSES FARM-LABOR POLICIES OF 1920

Declares 1922 Platform Mass of "Glittering Generalities"

MADISON, Wis., — Lieut. Gov. George F. Comings, announced candidate for governor, issued a statement Thursday saying that he would base his candidacy upon the platform principles of the LaFollette Progressive Republican platform of 1920 instead of that of 1922. He also set forth his support of principles contained in the Farmer-Labor platform of the same year.

"Probably the lamentable failure of the last legislation to enact good fundamental constructive laws was due to the fact that little or nothing specific was promised in the platform of 1922," the lieutenant governor said. "Performance, deeds, actions, always lag behind programs and platform promises." Said one of the progressive senators a little before adjournment. "We have kept our platform pledges and added we did not promise very much. The 1922 platform was a mass of glittering generalities."

"The 1922 platform declared for an equalization of federal and state taxes upon the principle that those who are best able to pay bear the heaviest burden. But probably all of the stalwarts will agree to such a statement as this."

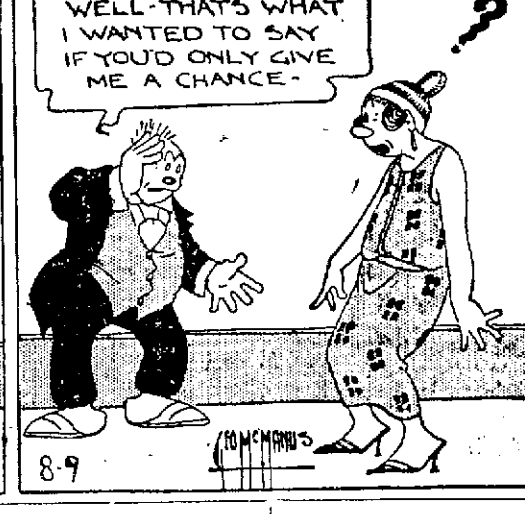

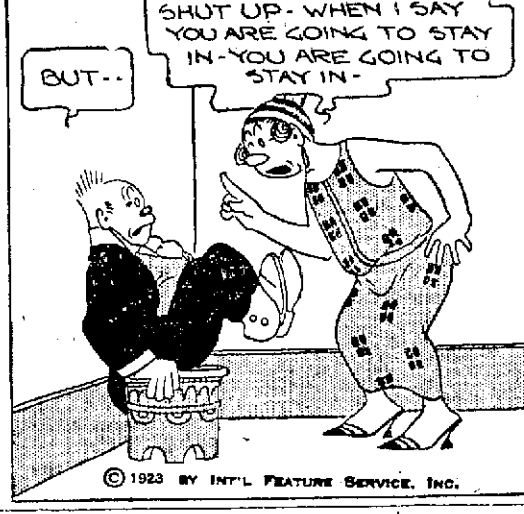

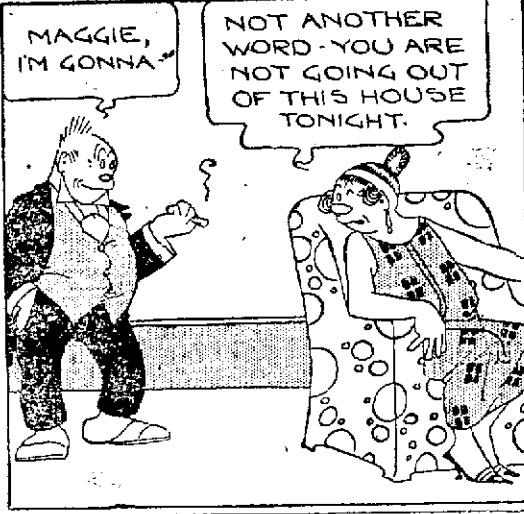

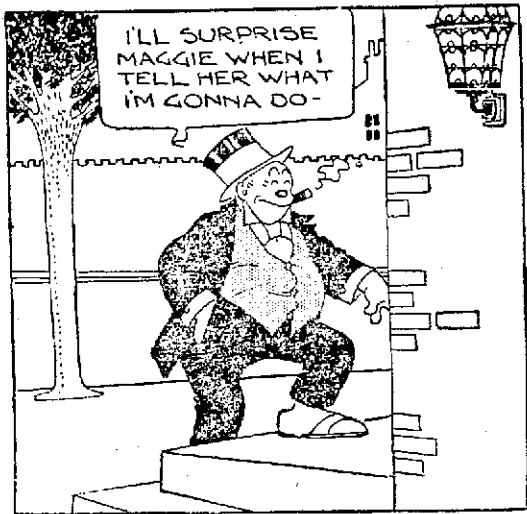

Lieut. Governor Comings declared himself in favor of "collective ownership of the utilities that all are dependent upon and an administration of them on a basis of service. The 1922 progressive platform was silent on collective ownership. The 1920 progressive platform declared for the ultimate public ownership of railroads and gradual acquisition of stock yard terminals, large packing plants, and all natural resources, the private ownership of which is the basis of monopoly."

"The 1920 platform was definite on taxation. It declared for exemptions under the income tax laws to be increased in proportion to the increase in the cost of living, and the farmer-labor platform of 1920 declared specifically for a higher rate of taxation on large incomes and the increase of exemptions."

"The 1922 platform was silent as to taxation calculated to force into use lands held for speculative purposes. The farmer-labor platform declared for such taxation, and had the Grinstead bill been passed, farm taxes for all the working farmers of the state would have been greatly reduced."

"The 1922 progressive platform was silent as to the exemption of improvements on farms and city homes. The 1920 progressive platform declared for a reasonable exemption from taxation of improvements. And the farmer-labor platform more specifically declared for a general exemption of improvements up to $5,000. These declarations certainly indicate the general direction which sound taxation policies must take."

BRINGING UP FATHER

"FIRST LADY" NURSES WIFE OF SECRETARY STRICKEN BY HEAT

WASHINGTON, — By The Associated Press. — Mrs. Calvin Coolidge Wednesday proved herself an able nurse. Returning from the Harding funeral ceremonies at the capital, Mrs. Edward T. Clark, wife of the president's secretary, collapsed from the heat in the corridor outside the presidential suite in the New Willard hotel. Mr. Clark ran to her side and with the assistance of others carried her into an adjoining room.

Hearing of the incident, Mrs. Coolidge went from her suite to Mrs. Clark's side and was administering restoratives when an army doctor arrived. Mrs. Clark soon recovered.

FORMER HEAD OF LANESBORO SCHOOLS GETS FINE POST

LANESBORO, Minn. — R. A. Kent, formerly a superintendent of the schools of this place, has recently been elected as dean at Northwestern university of Evanston, Ill. Prof. Kent was an instructor in the Mabel, Minn., and Lanesboro schools between 1904 and 1910, in 1911 becoming superintendent of the Winona schools. 1914 to 1916 he was principal of the University High school of Minnesota. At Lawrence, Kansas, he was superintendent of the city school for four years and in 1920-21 was superintendent of the city schools for four years. Turning to Lawrence he was dean of education and director of the summer school at the Kansas university. The College of Liberal Arts of the Northwestern university has an enrollment of three thousand students and the school officials have long searched for a man who could efficiently carry forward their plans of reorganization at last finding Prof. Kent who they believe will fill the position most ably.

Leaving Protection As Well As Money

"WHAT more can I do for my wife than to leave her everything I possess?" said a business man to one of our trust officers recently.

"You can do a great deal more," was the answer—"you can leave her both money and money protection."

In practically all cases when a wife is inexperienced in business and financial affairs it is the soundest policy to leave an estate in trust for her.

Some men think that it is sufficient to tell their wives to consult a trust company for advice as to the conservation of the money they leave. Trust officers know that such advice is followed all too infrequently. There are too many other counter-currents at work to sway the inexperienced woman.

If you would wish to have your wife consult this Company, make it a certainty by naming the Company as trustee in your will, for your wife's benefit.

A talk with one of our trust officers on this subject might be of value and help to you. We shall be glad to have you call. Send for our booklet, "Safeguarding Your Family's Future."
